

Topic: 5 ideas for team building events in summer

1. Survivor

Based on the popular reality television series, Survivor is an ideal program for the summer months. Its various team activities and challenges can be tailored to suit the environment being used - a beach, park, bushland or sport's reserve. Everyone can participate regardless of fitness level and, like the TV show, it will combine strategy and skill until a sole survivor reigns.

2. City Scramble

City Scramble pits teams against each other in a race around a certain location - a CBD, a small town, a suburb, a precinct or even large parkland. It's a great way to experience a destination and learn about its landmarks, history and features along the way. Teams will have plenty of fun as they navigate around the course completing challenge after challenge.

3. It's a Knockout

With plenty of inflatable activities, bright colours and obstacle courses, It's A Knockout is a throwback to the popular 80s TV program. It is perfect for a flat outdoor venue such as a park where numerous inflatable obstacles and novelty challenges can be set up. Maximising the great outdoors, it's a recreational program that promotes team interaction and plenty of laughter with an 80s theme.

4. Beach Olympics

What better way to experience both summer and the beach than in a fun team activity. Beach Olympics features a mix of recreational challenges that can cater for all fitness levels on the soft sand of a beach with the glistening ocean as a refreshing backdrop. With the Commonwealth Games coming up, this will be a popular program for companies to stage their own Games.

5. Give A Dog A Home

The end of year is a time of giving. This presents an opportunity for groups to undertake a team building program for a cause. One of these programs is Give A Dog A Home which can be run in a park with the added benefit of supporting animals in need. Teams work through a series of activities to build and decorate a dog kennel. After an overall winner is judged, the kennels are then donated to an animal charity or shelter.
